

Wade Meeks

biography

Wade Meeks was born in Little Rock, Arkansas, where his father was stationed as a recruiter for the U.S. Army. In 1990, the military stationed his father at Fort Polk, Louisiana, where the family moved shortly thereafter.

Trying to fit-in, in a new environment, Wade turned to music. His earliest musical influences were listening to his father's 8-tracks of Johnny Cash, Merle Haggard, and Jerry Reed as well as watching Hee-Haw on Saturday nights, dreaming of one day "pickin' & a grinning" with Roy Clark & Buck Owens.

Soon his love of music branched off a bit when he and his two older sisters would perform musical numbers to all those great golden oldies and Motown songs for their parents. That's when the gift of his showmanship came shining through.

During his teenage years his influences were based solely around George Strait and Hank Williams, Jr. "There is just something about the way George delivers a song and the way Bocephus makes you want to raise hell." An original and dynamic mixture of these two styles is how you could describe the Wade Meek's sound. "The life of the party, with a touch of class."
